

IRISH HOME RULE VICTORY FORCED PARLIAMENT

Redmond's Successful Fight
Means a Long Stride in Ireland's Cause.

COMMONS VOTE 2 TO 1.

Chief Secretary Birrell Admits
Something Must Be Done for the Country.

H. M. GOLDFOOLE,
N. Y. CONGRESSMAN,
ILL IN CAPITOL.

HENRY M. GOLDFOOLE

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Representative Henry M. Goldfoole, of New York, who was taken ill yesterday while in Congress, so far recovered today as to be able to leave his apartment.

'DUKE'S ALL RIGHT, WILL MAKE GOOD,' SAYS POP SHONTS

Work Germ Has Not Yet Got Chaulnes Going, but Wait
Till Honeymoon Is Over.

CHICAGO, March 31.—"Give the Duke a chance; he's a square shouldered young man and opportunity is all he wants," said Theodore P. Shonts yesterday, speaking of his new son-in-law, the Duke de Chaulnes. Referring to the debts of the Duke, he said:

"A man's debts may prove his worth. It takes a good man to get into debt and live comfortably. As to a title, it's possession or lack has nothing to do with the worth of a man."

"A good deal too much has been said about the marriage. The young folks are now on their honeymoon and shouldn't be bothered. 'Is there any truth in the report that the Duke is going to work?' was asked. 'Well,' replied Mr. Shonts, laughing, 'that germ hasn't broken out in virulent form yet, but wait until after the honeymoon. I know that the young man is going to plunge into a useful life and he will make good, too. He'll find me ready to give him all the encouragement and assistance needed.' Mr. Shonts said he had not objected to the marriage, as was reported."

Bar Percy, a Conservative, leading the opposition to the measure during a lively debate, presented this amendment:

"That inasmuch as the abandonment by the Imperial Parliament of its undivided responsibility, both for legislation and administration within the United Kingdom, would injure the property of Ireland and imperil the security of Great Britain, this House is unalterably opposed to the creation of an Irish Parliament with a responsible executive."

Ireland Determined.
Answering this, Mr. Redmond said: "The amendment raises a perfectly plain issue. On one side is the policy of repression. The proposal to add the words 'subject to the supreme authority of the Imperial Government' is unnecessary and superfluous, but if it is desired to add them we will accept it. Ireland is more governed and more discontented under British rule and is more determined never to cease agitation until she has home rule than at any time since the movement began."

"We ask from you power to develop in our own way our own qualities. We ask that what you have done for the Frenchmen in the Transvaal you should now do for the people of Ireland."

Mr. Redmond added that the only real argument against home rule is the fear of the harm 4,000,000 Irish people may do to the country.

Augustus Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, arose, grim and pale to address the House. He was greeted with a storm of liberal cheers. His words were downright uncompromising. He said:

"There is not time for this House to do all things that are necessary for Ireland, and which must be done unless misfortune and misery are to dog her path, and unless her final connection with this country is to be our lasting shame. Something more must be done unless we are to have something like hell in Ireland. The Irish may be an excitable people, but if there were introduced in East Africa such a law of legislation as has been applied to Ireland there would be far greater trouble and excitement than there has occurred in Ireland."

Sounds a Warning.
Banging a despatch box with his fist Mr. Birrell cried: "The Liberal party is a home rule party (Roars and cheers from the Nationalists). Yes, there is no kind of doubt about that. (Renewed cheers.) Proceeding, he said: 'I have never disguised from the electors that I am not a nationalist. A number of other Liberals have declared that home rule is outside of practical politics during the present Parliament.' He added, 'It is impossible to determine what should be the issue for any general election.'

"This is home rule's danger in the next general election, for it is impossible that the predominant partner would sink about anything he did not want to think about." He concluded by saying: "If the Irish desire that this question should be brought prominently before the English people at the next general election, and unless they were to make it clear what their proposals are."

Herbert Asquith, Chancellor of the Exchequer, while reaffirming his opinion that the ultimate solution of the question could only be found in a system of self-government as regards purely local matters, said he could not vote for the motion because no House of Commons would be justified in entrusting upon such a task unless the matter had first been submitted to the elector. This was not the case in the last general election.

So far as the present Parliament was concerned it had exhausted its powers in regard to the problem of Irish government. The British people had not yet been convinced, and until they were convinced it would be impossible to travel an inch along the road.

The House then divided on Mr. Birrell's amendment, which was defeated by a vote of 145 to 234 and then on Mr. Redmond's motion, with the words 'subject to the supreme authority of the Imperial Parliament' added, and it was adopted by a vote of 233 to 147.

WORK FOR 300,000
MEN ON RAILROADS

Advance Guard of Great Army of Toilers Will Make a Start To-Morrow.

CHICAGO, March 31.—In the next sixty days the railroads of the United States will have to find about 300,000 men to mend their tracks and roadbeds and another large army to go into their shops and repair their cars and their locomotives. The railroads centering in Chicago alone will, between to-morrow and June 1, require more than 100,000 laborers.

Work will start to-morrow on the roads which are the best favored by climatic conditions and will be increased rapidly until June 1, when removal and repair work will be in full swing on every railroad in the country. The average number of men needed by each of the large Chicago systems is 70,000 and the wages offered are to be about the same as last year, when labor was scarcer and more men were needed.

A SURGICAL OPERATION

If there is any one thing that a woman dreads more than another it is a surgical operation.

We can state without fear of a contradiction that there are hundreds, yes, thousands, of operations performed upon women in our hospitals which are entirely unnecessary and many have been avoided by

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

For proof of this statement read the following letters.

Mrs. Barbara Base, of Kingman, Kansas, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"For eight years I suffered from the most severe form of female troubles and was told that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has saved my life and made me a well woman."

Mrs. Arthur R. House, of Church Road, Moorestown, N. J., writes:

"I feel it is my duty to let people know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from female troubles, and last March my physician decided that an operation was necessary. My husband objected, and urged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to-day I am well and strong."
